Southeast Regional Fugitive Task Force

On September 8, 2005, investigators from the Southeast Regional Fugitive Task Force (SERFTF) arrested fugitive Christy Pike at a residence in Coweta County, Georgia. On June 23, 2005, Pike was ordered by the Coweta County, Georgia Juvenile Court to immediately surrender custody of her son to the Department of Family and Child Services (DFACS) because of her heavy methamphetamine use and numerous arrests for possession of the drug. Pike refused the order and fled with the child. On June 29, 2005, arrest warrants were issued for Pike in Coweta County, Georgia for interference with custody of a child and forgery. On August 8, 2005, the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) requested assistance from SERFTF in locating and arresting the subject for custodial kidnapping due to the likelihood that the child was still in her custody. The investigation by SERFTF revealed that Pike was possibly living at a home belonging to family members in Palmetto, Georgia. On the morning of September 8, SERFTF investigators made contact with Christy Pike's father at the entrance of the residence. He advised that Christy was not at the house and that he hadn't seen her in weeks. He then gave SERFTF investigators permission to search the residence. Once inside, agents spoke with several family members who all stated that Christy was not there and that none of them had seen her in a few weeks. During the search, however, investigators located Christy Pike hiding in a closet inside of the residence, where she was arrested without incident. A further search revealed her child, also located inside of the residence. The child was turned over to Coweta County DFACS. Pike's criminal history contains nine prior arrests, including eight for narcotics offenses. Two of Pike's sisters have also had children surrendered to DFACS because of their involvement with methamphetamine.
